Overview

The soybean looper is a caterpillar about 1 1/4 inches long that moves with the characteristic looping movement. It is a sporatic feeder on soybeans, usually found mid-July to mid-August. The larvae eat leaf tissue, leaving irregularly-shaped holes between the veins.

Read more: Soybean looper – Soybean Insect Guide, Iowa State University

Resources

Soybean Looper
Soybean Insect Guide, Iowa State University
https://www.ent.iastate.edu/soybeaninsects/soybean_looper